Ukon Takayama is an early Christian in Japan who had been in this land, Kanazawa. He was a great architect and worked for the Maeda family. He built castles and tea houses. He underwent cruel torment by the then most powerful ruler, Hedeyoshi Toyotomi who thought that Christianity would destroy his formed Samurai society. However, Ukon Takayama did not renounce his christain faith. As a result, he was banished to the Philippines in 1614.
